Miracles in Mark: Compassion for the Contaminated

Leprosy was one of the most horrific diseases of ancient times. Not only was leprosy often fatal, it also resulted in the infected person being considered unclean. A leper was required to live in isolation from all others. If a clean person were to come near then, a leper was required by law to cry out "Unclean! Unclean!" (Lev. 23:44-46). Living life as a leper would be one of the most depressing and lonely lives imaginable.

Through Mark chapter one we see Jesus' popularity quickly begin to grow as he began healing sick and casting out demons (vs. 32-33). In verse 40 we're introduced to a man who had this horrible disease of leprosy. From Luke's account we read that the man was "full of leprosy." His leprosy had progressed to a severe stage. It is possible that by the time he came to Jesus he may have even lost some of his toes and fingers as a result of this disease. As you would expect, this man had an incredibly great desire to be healed of this disease.

Just like most everyone else in the region of Galilee, this man had heard about the great things Jesus was doing. He was convinced Jesus had the ability to heal him of his leprosy. The only doubt the leper had was whether or not Jesus would want to. In verse 40 we read the leper's words as he implored Jesus to heal him: "If you will, you can make me clean."

Our sin is a lot like leprosy. Both are fatal. Like leprosy left individuals in the Old Testament unclean, our sin leaves us unclean from God. And therefore, our sin forces us to live in isolation from God.

Throughout the gospel's we learn time and time again of Jesus' authority. Jesus had authority over Satan and his demons, authority over the laws of nature, and authority to forgive sins (See Mark 2:10). Jesus has the ability to cleanse us of our sins. He can make us clean. But does He desire to make us clean?

After the leper begs for Jesus' cleaning in verse 40, Verse 41 reads, "Moved with pity; he stretched out his hand and touched him and said to him, 'I will; be clean'. Instead of scolding the leper for endangering His health with the contagious skin disease, Jesus reached out his hand and touched the leper! Through the action of touching the leper's uncleanness, the leper was cleansed.

Jesus has the ability to forgive us of our sins, but does he desire to? After all, the word sin means "to miss the mark." Sin is rebellion against God's will. Sin violating what God has told us to do. Sure Jesus has the power to forgive our sins, but when we so often blatantly rebel against God, why would He want to?

Jesus had pity on the leper, and even touched his uncleanness to make him clean. We are reminded time and time again in scripture that Jesus has done the same for us. Romans 5:8 reads, "God shows his love for us in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us." In 1 Timothy 2:4 and 2 Peter 3:9 we read that God wants all men to be saved. Like the leper, Jesus cleansed us by touching our uncleanness, just as 2 Corinthians 5:21 reads, "For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God." Not only does Jesus have the ability to save all men, but he also has the desire to save all men – even the worst of sinners.

Jesus had pity on the leper and the desire to heal him. The leper knew Jesus had the ability to heal him. However, if the leper never went to Jesus, he would have died a leper.

We know Jesus can save us of our sins. The Bible tells us God desires for us to be saved. The leper hated his uncleanness, and therefore went to Jesus. Do you hate your sin enough to turn to Jesus and faithfully follow His will?
