I'll Keep On Till They Quit

There once was an older man who went out jogging. He was running around a track that circled the high school football field while the team was conducting their practice. When the football players began running their sprints up and down the field, the man said to himself, "I'll just keep running until they quit." So they ran. And he ran. And they kept on running. So he kept on running.

Finally, in total exhaustion the man had to stop. When he stopped, an equally exhausted football player walked over to him and said, "Boy, I'm glad you finally stopped, Mister. Our coach told us that we had to keep running wind sprints as long as the old guy was jogging!"

It seems to me that we can sometimes find ourselves in a similar kind of situation when it comes to anger and conflict. We have a disagreement with someone and get into an argument. Voices get raised. Neither side wants to be the first to give in, to stop speaking in anger. Everyone has the attitude, "I'll just keep on till they quit." So the other party stays mad. So we stay mad. And on we go, eventually finding ourselves emotionally and even physically exhausted by the ongoing animosity.

Let me challenge you to do something very difficult. The next time you get in an argument, be the first to give in. Be the first to stop the yelling and the name-calling. Be the first to say, "I'm sorry." It's the quickest way to stop the vicious cycle.

"A soft answer turns away wrath, but a harsh word stirs up anger." (Proverbs 15:1) Have a great day!

A Time to Laugh (Ecclesiastes 3:4)

A Bible class teacher asked her little children as they were on the way to worship service, "And why is it necessary to be quiet in church?" One bright little girl replied, "Because people are sleeping."

Young Mia came home from Sunday School and told her mother that she had learned a new song about a cross-eyed bear named "Gladly". It took her mother a while before she realized that the hymn was really "Gladly The Cross I'd Bear."

The True Flowers

The flowers of spring are lovely
For God designed them so
But what could be more beautiful
Than Jesus—Sharon's rose?

Wild flowers are rare and stately
On mountains beautiful to see
But none can compare to Jesus
The Lily of the Valley.
