Three Motivations from VBS

For many churches, though, VBS, is just a thing they do because they have always done it. While, it takes a lot of effort, it just kind of happens, and then is forgotten until a few weeks or so before the usual time slot on the calendar starts drawing the next year. But even then, there can be excitement that comes when a Vacation Bible School is successful. Knowing that, I want to share three things that VBS should help motivate us to do more than just one week each year. There are things that we put so much effort into for that one brief event, but that we should put more effort into a more regular basis.

Decorating Education Spaces. It has amazed me for years, how congregations will decorate classrooms, hallways, and even stairwells and their education area for VBS, but will hardly change the poster on the wall for the regular Bible school program. Certainly, VBS is the time to decorate in a way that is special, but should we not also try to make our classrooms look special for each unit of study? How can a room or hallway be decorated for a quarters study on the life of Moses, or on the book of Acts? Make it happen!

Inviting Guest. This is the most obvious. We put all this effort into VBS, so we will go all out to be sure we fill our classrooms and seats with visitors. People pass out flyers, go, door-knocking, and share things on social media. Young people invite, friends, and neighbors. While special events help with that, should we not be inviting people all the time? Don't let it stop just because this event is over.

Volunteerism. Maybe because they grew up going to VBS, adults volunteer to help with Vacation Bible School, almost like they will volunteer for nothing else. If that describes you, thank you for your help, but why not volunteer for something else during the other 51 weeks of the year! Take that motivation and use it to help a teacher or a deacon and get work done for the Lord. There is still a place for VBS in our church calendars, but we never need to do something just to do it. When done well, it is exciting, but that excitement should always lead to motivation to do our best all the times. What kind of motivation will you take from your VBS this year?
